FROM OUR LEADERSHIP

Dear Collegiate Community,

Welcome to the 107th school year at Louisville Collegiate School. After a year filled with virtual events, recorded artistic performances, rescheduled competitions, and uncertainty, we were grateful to reopen our campus to a new school year filled with hope. It is also a year with a renewed focus on providing a safe place for students to learn and know that they belong.

On August 17, we opened the school with 747 students, our largest in school history. We also welcomed a talented group of 21 new teachers with extensive knowledge and experience, who ensure that Collegiate maintains its strong 7-1 student-to-teacher ratio and commitment to a small-by-design approach. A true testament to what makes Collegiate - Collegiate. The number of applications we are seeing for next year shows that we will continue that momentum.

This community is resilient, strong, and committed to providing an exceptional educational experience for our students both in and outside the classrooms. Our convocation, pep rally, homecoming dance, alumni awards, and fall festival were all held in person and outdoors this fall to provide students and our community with a way to come together and celebrate these traditional school rituals. We thank you for your patience and ongoing support as we navigate this school year through the pandemic with hopes of staying healthy and safe for in-person learning.

This fall, students are competing in quick recall and athletic competitions, learning songs for the upcoming Middle School musical, Beauty and the Beast Jr., and thriving in the classrooms. We are proud of our students and look forward to watching them grow, learn, and excel as the school year progresses.

Last year, despite all of the challenges we faced, this community came together to support each other through our #LCSUnites campaign. We are grateful for your support and thank the nearly 900 loyal families who donated during the 2020-21 school year. Dollars raised help to support our operating budget and allow Collegiate to continue its educational programming and healthy-at-school initiatives.

In this issue of The Bulletin, you will find our 2020-2021 Annual Report. We thank you for your continued support of Louisville Collegiate School.

With appreciation,

Collegiate Focuses on Health and Wellbeing

By Jim McGuire, Associate Head of School

Personal wellness and wellbeing has so much to do with our daily practices and the habits that are formed by our actions and routines. The activities in which we engage and the choices that we make every single moment of our lives have the power to contribute to our wellbeing, or not. Schools or organizations, like individuals, are no different. Among school-age children, we know many of our students are struggling now more than ever due to a myriad of reasons, and research tells us that we can teach skills that will make a meaningful difference in the wellbeing of our students.

Louisville Collegiate School has been engaging in daily practices that have grown into our school's habits for 100+ years. Those years of practice have nurtured a culture that values community, belonging, togetherness, compassion, authentic expression, and personal relationships. For certain, our school has been doing great work to be a healthy and well community since its inception... and there is more work to be done. Dr. Macrae came to our school in 2019 with a vision and a challenge to make Louisville Collegiate School the healthiest school for kids to grow up, a place that supports wellbeing for the whole human being--the mind, the body, and the spirit.

To achieve his ambitious aim, Dr. Macrae charged us all to examine how we conduct each day, giving careful consideration to what we practice as an organization so we can bring a mindful intention to our community's culture, tone, and tenor. His vision is built upon a premise that schools that excel academically will undoubtedly produce high-achieving scholars, but a community that works hard to develop the whole child--giving the head, the body, and the spirit equal attention--will more comprehensively support the education of its students than those institutions that shy away from this work. With this emphasis, Collegiate students will not only be more intellectually prepared for our world but also more socially, emotionally, and spiritually actualized, which will result in a fuller, more authentic expression of their true selves and potential.

This academic year, we have begun the work in earnest. For starters, Dr. Macrae has developed key partnerships with Dr. Lisa Miller at Columbia University Teachers College's Collaborative for Spirituality in Education; Yale's Center for Emotional Intelligence; Project Wayfinder; and the Earth and Spirit Center, which is located right here in our backyard. Miller's work out of Columbia has been instrumental in helping us think about how we create a culture of transformative relationships as we support the development of students' inner selves and encourage connections to something bigger than themselves. It is important to note that Columbia's work and, by proxy, Collegiate's spirituality work is secular in nature and not grounded in religious practices or structures.

Yale's Center for Emotional Intelligence has a well-researched curriculum called RULER that teaches concrete ways to understand our emotions, how those impact us on a daily basis, and how to embrace our emotions without being governed by them. Our work with Project Wayfinder is a course that Dr. Macrae and I are piloting in the Upper School this year that teaches individuals a process for living lives with purpose rooted in their values, strengths, and joys. Finally, our partnership with the Earth and Spirit Center on Newburg Road has been a budding relationship that has yielded meditation courses for our faculty and staff and has the potential for all sorts of future collaborations.

AROUND COLLEGIATE

In addition to some of the connections that we have made with off-campus partners, we also recently created a community-wide Wellness Committee that is made up of over 20 different individuals representing all areas of the school community--from board members to parents, to faculty and staff, all groups are represented. This group has been working since last May to examine what wellness work should look like at Collegiate. While this work can be challenging and hard to make concrete, the group has already taken steps to offer mindfulness/meditation practices to faculty and staff, enhance spaces on campus to nurture a stronger connection to the beautiful nature we have all around us here on Glenmary Avenue, and consider how to be a community of possibilities and balance. Future work will also include partnerships with families and our Parents Association.

Most important is the work to integrate a focus on wellness into the daily experience of our scholars. Science is now confirming what we have long known as educators here at Collegiate, that a whole child approach is not just good for social, emotional, and spiritual development; it is also important for every student’s learning and academic growth. Characteristics associated with wellbeing like gratitude, resilience, grit, connection, etc. are teachable ones and can be cultivated with intentional instruction and skill-building. We can teach our students the kinds of practices that lead to lifelong habits of comprehensive wellness and wellbeing.

“Science is now confirming what we have long known as educators here at Collegiate, that a whole child approach is not just good for social, emotional, and spiritual development; it is also important for every student’s learning and academic growth.”

To that end, Collegiate is actively engaged in developing a curricular scope and sequence of competencies for student wellness that we will strive to

COLLEGIATE GOLD Gala 2022

February 26, 2022, 6:30 p.m.

Chaired by Erin Eggers Fidler '96, P'28, '31, '33 and Denise Ragland P'20, '22

On February 26, 2022, Louisville Collegiate School will host its school-wide fundraiser known as the Gala. This event brings together the Collegiate community for an evening to celebrate and support Collegiate's mission to inspire academic excellence, extraordinary character, and global citizenship.

If you would like to help us make our event a huge success, please donate a bottle of bourbon or an item for our silent and live auctions. We would love to highlight our parent and alumni businesses and organizations!

With a contribution to our Gala, you will support more than 750 students JK-12, who come from more than 53 different zip codes. Each year, with help from partners like you, Collegiate awards more than $3 million in tuition assistance to approximately 40% of families.

Please visit one.bidpal.net/lcsgala2022 or email Catherine Gatewood Easley '02 at ceasley@louisvillecollegiate.org.

teach to all students JK through 12. This framework will give students a foundation and education in wellness that will serve them just as much as the education they receive in more traditional academic areas. The wellness competency work is part of a larger core competencies project this year, led by Dr. Steven Sowell and Clay Gahan, that is looking at 10 core competency areas that we want all of our students to develop during their time at Collegiate.

This certainly is an exciting time for Collegiate. We are building our wellness and wellbeing work on an historical foundation that is strong, authentic, and true. Please stay tuned for more information and opportunities to engage in this important work.

Wayfinder Class Focuses on Living Life with Purpose, Intention, and Meaning

By Dr. Rob Macrae, Head of School

As part of our school's overarching emphasis on wellbeing, I returned to the classroom this fall to teach a course to our 10th-grade students on how to live one's life with purpose, intention, and meaning. It has been an absolute blast. Connecting with students, engaging in deep and meaningful conversations, creatively constructing lesson plans to accomplish our objectives, and most importantly, supporting our students' development of a life-long skill set is exactly the type of work that gives my own life whole-hearted meaning and purpose.

The class, entitled Wayfinder, is a curriculum that is based on a popular book, Design Your Life by Bill Burnett and Dave Evans, and a course that was born out of the Stanford's d. school. The goal of the course is to take on one of the most challenging problems that we all face at different times in our lives--how to identify and understand our ever-evolving purpose and how to make intentional, daily decisions that are rooted in that discernment. Wayfinder brings this work to students in high schools and teaches those in the course a process for discovering and identifying their respective purpose that can be revisited over and over throughout their life as their interests, strengths, and values shift and evolve. To get at this complicated and difficult material, we utilize several pedagogical methods throughout the course, e.g. mindfulness, visualization, small group and large group discussion, journaling, and various other contemplative exercises. Finally, we also discuss the importance of bringing intention to those daily habits and skills that we practice, the importance of mindfully connecting those to our larger purpose, and how our daily actions have a big impact on overall wellness.

Wayfinder is just one way that we are integrating wellness work into Louisville Collegiate School, but it is a great representation of what I have long understood as an educator. Comprehensive wellness is grounded in practices, habits, and skills that are learned and, therefore, teachable. We all have the ability, throughout our lives, to better understand our purpose and what matters most to us; expand our gratitude for what we have in our lives and the opportunities we have to grow and develop; find balance and energy in the many things that we do; connect with our true inner self, and bridge our self to something larger than our self.

I recently wrapped up the first round of Wayfinder with one group of our sophomores and the feedback was extremely positive and strong. Across the board, students reported that they really appreciated the time that was carved out to reflect on their personal mission and how to make choices and decisions that are rooted in what matters most to them. They went on to say that it can be tough to remain mindful of their overarching purpose during the busyness of their daily lives. Students felt that this course gave them the opportunity to step back, to reflect on what they really care about, and to make choices that accurately reflect their purpose.

Getting back in the classroom, I am reminded that I am grateful for our students, the energy and enthusiasm that they bring through our doors every single day, and a school community that clearly values and supports whole-child education.

Record Number of Students Participate in Fall Athletics

By: Paul Augustus, Director of Athletics, 5-12

The 2021 fall athletic season will be one for the record books! With our highest number of fall participants (304) and coaches (38), the fall season afforded many student-athletes opportunities to grow, develop, and learn. Over 68% of Middle School students and 56% of Upper School students participated in a fall sport, but leading the way was the 7th grade with just under 92% of the class. The strong level of participation is a clear indication of our community's appreciation for interscholastic athletics and Amazon and Titan pride.

The fall sports season also saw an incredible amount of success on the fields and courses. For Middle School, golf expanded to two full teams, both representing Collegiate in their end-of-season tournament. We had four soccer teams, with the 6th-grade team advancing to their tournament championship. Cross country had a strong showing and sent runners to the MS state meet. We had three field hockey teams, and our 7th/8th Gold team ended their season as tournament runner-ups in an exciting championship game.

At the Upper School level, the field hockey team won their pool at the Gateway Tournament in St. Louis. We are building significant momentum with a strong participation at both Varsity and Junior Varsity levels. Cross country continues to impress with both the girls and boys teams ranked in the top three for class 1A. The golf teams each finished runner-up in the 7th Region All "A" Tournament and have a promising future with a lot of talent returning next year. Titan soccer finished 11-6-3 on the year and was ranked in the top-10 in the state for most of the season. Amazon soccer had one of their most successful seasons in the 21-year history of the program, finishing with a 12-3 record.

We are also excited about many initiatives within the Athletic Department. Our partnership with Norton Sports Performance provides a comprehensive athletic program for all of our athletes with a focus on injury prevention, maximizing student-athlete development, and optimizing team success. We are still actively fundraising for the VICTORY Campaign, which will add a turf field (pictured right) at Champions Trace. With the light poles up, the project is making exciting progress, and we fully expect the field to be ready for the spring sports season. The Athletic Department is grateful for all of our coaches who give so much to their programs and for the tremendous support that our families provide.

Go, Collegiate!

Middle School Gold Golf team finishes second in the JCPS Cup.

Varsity Amazons Soccer finished the season with a 12-3 record.

Varsity Titans Cross Country team finishes runner-up at regionals.

ANNUAL REPORT

#LCSUnites for the Annual Fund

During the 2020-21 school year, the unity in this community mattered more than ever, as we rose to every challenge presented by the pandemic.

Thanks to every family, faculty/staff member, board member, alum, and friend of the school who contributed to #LCSUnites. We are so proud that nearly 900 households in this community united to raise nearly $700,000* for the Annual Fund, ensuring that the school had all the resources required to offer the best educational experience possible and a safe return to in-person teaching and learning.

The Annual Fund is the cornerstone of all LCS giving and supports the ongoing day-to-day operational expenses of the school. It allows us to provide professional development for our talented faculty, and hold conversations about diversity, equity, and inclusion. It also elevates the academic, arts, and athletic programs that make the Collegiate experience exceptional. Annual Fund gifts provide the school with the financial support necessary to remain healthy, innovative, and accessible.

Included in this total is $193,460 in restricted giving. These donor-directed gifts supported COVID-related expenses, merit scholarships, the arts, the Center for Learning Advancement, and improvements to the physical plant.*

Students, faculty, and staff were excited to gather this year on the field for the fall pep rally!

Named for the school's founders, Virginia Perrin Speed (1879-1968) and her husband, William Shallcross Speed (1873-1955), the Speed Society consists of individuals and families who make a legacy gift to Collegiate's planned giving program.

Planned gifts can provide a variety of benefits which may include life income, continued use of gift property, an avoidance of capital gains tax and immediate tax deduction.

Contrary to popular misconception, nearly everyone can make a planned gift to Louisville Collegiate School at some level and a multitude of simple options exist:

BEQUEST

Making a bequest to Louisville Collegiate School can be easily accomplished by including a few sentences in a will or Revocable Living Trust. Bequests are flexible and can be adjusted-perhaps for this reason, 75% of planned gifts come in this form! Legal and financial advisors will know how best to structure a will to meet a donor's financial needs.

LIFE INSURANCE

Whole-life insurance policies represent a valuable opportunity to make a major gift that benefits both the donor and the school in many ways. It is incredibly simple to name the School as a beneficiary on a policy.

RETIREMENT PLANS

Naming Collegiate as the beneficiary of a retirement plan (IRA, 401K, or 403B) is an easy and tax efficient way to leave a legacy gift. Given current tax laws, beneficiaries other than spouses may be taxed on the income, but charities such as Louisville Collegiate School are able to receive the full amount of remaining retirement assets.

OTHER PLANNED GIFTS

A properly chosen planned gift vehicle may offer significant tax benefits and retirement income to the donor, while imparting a much larger gift than imagined.

For more information on The Speed Society, please contact Mandy Helton, Assistant Director of Advancement, at 502.292.0459 or mhelton@louisvillecollegiate.org.

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION BOARD

The Alumni Association Board is composed of 22 members from a wide variety of class years. During the 2020-2021 school year, the Board supported Collegiate alumni through several organized events, including a Virtual Alumni Trivia Night, Collegiate Trivia Night, many college conversations with young alums, Junior Street Leadership Ceremony, Senior Capstone Dinner and panel, among others. The Alumni Association also manages The Glenmary Shop, which sells school spirit items and apparel. This revenue is given back to Collegiate through yearly donations of products and sponsorships to events, graduation gifts for our Seniors, memorabilia for students, and offers additional ways to foster relationships between alumni and Louisville Collegiate School.

TOTAL ALUMNI GIVING:16% DONATED*2021 TRIVIA NIGHT

In February, alumni, parents, faculty, staff, and friends of Collegiate came out to support the school at the 2021 Trivia Night. Nearly 300 people (in person and virtually), spread out over 37 teams, battled it out to become LCS Trivia Champions!

The event was incredibly successful while also being great fun for all. We surpassed all of our fundraising goals by raising more than $35,000 for Collegiate. Special thanks to our committee members Erin Eggers Fidler '96, Denise Ragland, and Amy Scheinler. Thanks to Greg Geis for creating the table and drink signage in The Makery.

Congrats to our winning team - Livin' la Vida Lockdown - Brian Cook '94, Robyn Metcalf Cook '91, Faina Kaplan, Vadim Kaplan, Yelena Schmidt, Vichan Snow '94, Asher Snow, and Olga Snyder.
