Summer 2023

FROM OUR LEADERSHIP

Dear Collegiate Community,

On June 2, we held our 107th commencement ceremony and celebrated 54 seniors who earned diplomas for their hard work both in and outside the classrooms. I am proud of these students and thankful to our outstanding administration, faculty, and staff who helped them through their journey at Louisville Collegiate School.

The class of 2023 has 13 "Lifers," students who began in kindergarten at Collegiate. There are 10 legacy students who have a connection to a parent, grandparent, or great-grandparent who attended and/or graduated from Collegiate. Graduates are matriculating to 40 different colleges and universities in 20 states, D.C., and Spain. I applaud their countless successes in the classroom, on the stage, and playing fields. We are excited to welcome these students into our Alumni Association of over 2,200 graduates.

This past August, the entire school community gathered for Convocation and officially opened the 2022-23 school year. We made dedications at our new turf field at Homecoming and look forward to opening the new Barker Brown Athletic Complex this fall. In November, we welcomed over 400 grandparents and special friends to campus. The Holiday Program was a joyful display of song and dance by our students. Our Titan Indoor Track & Field team won the 1A State Championship for the first time in school history. And most recently, we hosted our 61st running of the Kindergarten Derby. It has been a fun and memorable school year for all.

Throughout the year, we continued our health and wellness initiatives by hosting a series of speakers and events for the community. We want to be the healthiest place for students to learn and grow and are devoted to building a school culture where every community member feels that they belong. Collegiate is a special place, and we are grateful for everyone who serves on boards and committees, volunteers, and contributes to the success of this great school.

I hope you enjoy your summer with family and friends. Please mark your calendars for the events this fall, including Reunion Weekend for Alumni, Homecoming at Champions Trace, and parent gatherings for everyone to come together, meet new families, and reconnect. Thank you for your ongoing support and commitment to Collegiate. Congratulations, class of 2023!

With appreciation,

Learning Courage

By Clay Gahan, Dean of Faculty

“When I’m at my very best, I teach courage.” Sharon Kinnison, Director of Fine and Performing Arts, shared these words with me earlier this winter. She was in the middle of explaining why she has remained so devoted to teaching throughout her career, and this line made me stop. She nails an important point—one that we often have trouble pinpointing.

In their classes, in the arts, and in athletics, Collegiate students learn a staggering amount—from tying shoes to quantum mechanics and all in between. But none of this learning really does anything unless it is paired with courage. At some point (probably a whole bunch of points), one’s own ideas and actions have to matter by their own mettle. No amount of information access, artificial intelligence, or—at the whole other end of the spectrum—no amount of cloistered erudite study is going to teach one courage. That kind of learning happens through doing and acting with the knowledge that one’s participation matters.

Ms. Kinnison is right about courage and its central role in a great education. At Collegiate, we believe this happens best when students get deeply involved inside and outside of class—when they get regular opportunities to experience the adrenaline and vulnerability of meaningful contribution.

“When I’m at my best,
I teach courage.”

- Ms. Sharon Kinnison

If you spent time with our students this school year, you witnessed a lot of courage being born. Just a few weeks ago, each one of our Kindergartners laced up their shoes and raced their heart out before hundreds of people at the 61st Kindergarten Derby. As Lori Trexler, Kindergarten Instructor, articulated so well in an interview with a local television station, there may only be one winner, but everyone is going to try hard and cheer hard. Learning how to race as earnestly as one can and then go on to be a good winner or a good loser is learning courage. And similar moments abound at Collegiate. The Middle School Rock Band put on a concert for the entire school. Hundreds of students displayed their artwork in the school’s art shows. We held the Spring Sing with over seventy students adding their voices to that concert. The seventh- and eighth-grade boys’ lacrosse team won the league championship. The Upper School students unabashedly performed the hilarious comedy The Play That Goes Wrong. A lot of practice and skill go into these different endeavors—and an equal amount of courage.

These are just some highlights from the final month of the school year. Earlier in the year, our Indoor Boys Track Team won the state title. Our Upper School and Middle School robotics teams won state championships and advanced to the FLL and FTC First Championships in Houston, a global competition. Collegiate advanced to state in every Governor’s Cup event this winter. For the third year in a row, our Middle School has enjoyed a massive and successful showing at KUNA where 61 Collegiate students presented.

The list goes on. More importantly, though, student participation in athletics, the arts, and co-curriculars is up. This makes for a healthier community spirit, but it also means that more and more of our students are getting diverse opportunities to step up, try hard, be vulnerable, and gain meaningful courage.

I am ecstatic to see how our students will challenge and give of themselves in the school year to come.

Seniors Commit to Play Intercollegiate Athletics

Congratulations to the following seniors who have committed to play intercollegiate athletics next year in college. We are proud of these students for working hard to accomplish their goals of competing at the next level.

Collegiate Celebrates the 61st Kindergarten Derby

On May 4, Collegiate hosted the 61st running of the Kindergarten Derby. The entire JK-12 community of students, parents, alumni, faculty, and staff gathered on the campus field to celebrate this event. Senior boys escorted the official Derby Festival Queen and her court around the track. Lower School students participated in a "Pegasus Parade," while Middle and Upper School students cheered throughout the races.

Congratulations to our Kindergarten jockeys who ran in this year's Kindergarten Derby. It was a beautiful morning to gather as a community and celebrate one of Collegiate's most treasured traditions!

Aligning DEI With Our School Mission

By Dr. Tiffany Bridgewater, Head of Lower School & Director of Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion

As we help our students develop a true sense of self, openness, and appreciation for the different backgrounds and perspectives that make up our school community, the faculty continue to work tirelessly to integrate the pillars that embody our mission and the Collegiate Cornerstones into our diversity, equity, and inclusion work throughout the school year.

During the school year, we continued to expand and develop initiatives and activities to help our students demonstrate integrity and respect for all individuals and to act in the best interests of others and the community. Below are a few highlights from the academic year.

HIGHLIGHTS FROM THE 2022-2023 SCHOOL YEAR

Intentional Partnerships with JK-12 Faculty & Staff, Counseling and Center for Learning Advancement teams, Upper School Student Support Committee, Division Heads, Administration, Parents, Students, and Alumni

These partnerships continue to ensure themes of diversity, equity, and inclusion are part of the overall programming and school initiatives.

Honor and Support Upper School Student Affinity Groups

We continued providing opportunities for student leaders to develop their identities with peers sharing the same cultural/historical experiences and perspectives. This year, affinity leaders worked within and across affinity groups and divisions. They also went to Frankfort and volunteered at Gilda's Club of Kentuckiana.

Coordination with Parents Association and Parents Association DEI Committee

We strive to create a sense of belonging and accessibility for students and families through parent-sponsored activities/events including the Families of Students of Color Gathering, Used Uniform Sale, Bake Sale, Book Fair, and extracurricular activities.

Students attended the Fairness Rally in Frankfort to protest the recent legislation targeting the LGBTQ+ community in Kentucky.

Sustain the work of our Library Service Team

We make certain the library service team has the resources necessary to continue working with teachers to broaden each student's recognition and understanding of the multicultural landscape in which they live through a diverse selection of books. Events include the Diversity Read-In, Book Fair, Book Exchange to support the Smoketown Wellness Center Free Bookshelves.

Facilitate school-wide summer reading for Faculty & Staff, Parents Association Board members, Board of Trustees DEI Committee, and SEED faculty group (Seeking Educational Equity and Diversity)

Through literature, we utilize small group discussions to examine our social identities, which helps us support students as they grapple with their own and the opportunities and barriers associated with them. Adults in our community continued to examine their personal "records" as they work to strengthen their teaching and learning curriculum and practices as it applies to diversity, equity, and inclusion.

I continue to be inspired by the support of Dr. Macrae, faculty, administrators, students, and parents in the Collegiate community who understand the importance of this work in preparing our students for a globally diverse and complex world. Building a community where cultural competency is a given takes commitment and intentionality.

Dear Fellow Alumni,

With the close of the 2022-2023 school year, there is so much to look back on. This year brought us back to a sense of normalcy and Collegiate was ready and jumped back in head first. Collegiate remains an institution where students have the opportunities to excel in the classroom, on the field, in the studio, and on the stage – creating strong classes of alumni for the future. And Collegiate is a place that continues to progress and grow, while celebrating its long-standing traditions, like first graders escorting our seniors on graduation day. We recently inducted the 2023 class into the alumni ranks and we're excited to have 54 wonderful new members.

At the beginning of the year, the Alumni Association's board created a series of goals and I'm pleased to say that we've been able to accomplish them through the hard work of our members.

Some highlights include:

- Growing Alumni involvement with the Glenmary Shop, allowing us to raise more money to give back to the Collegiate community. This year, the Association has donated over $2,000 to school events and we contributed an additional $10,000 to the Victory Campaign.
- Strong involvement amongst our new Alumni Executive Board members who supported the Alumni Association in-person and virtually.
- Restarting out-of-town Alumni events – Our alumni event in New York City was a success and we look forward to more next year!
- Focusing on Alumni professional networking – collecting information about our alums and connecting graduating seniors to alumni in the Co-Edge courses.

Thanks to the dedication of alumni to our dear alma mater, I am thrilled to announce that we've increased alumni donors and alumni contributed more for this year's Annual Fund than ever before. Thirty-eight classes increased their participation percentages! A huge thank you for giving back to support Collegiate's students and the 150 faculty and staff.

Please mark your calendars for Reunion Weekend on September 29-30! It's hard to believe that this June will mark my graduating class' 20-year reunion. I invite all alumni to come back for this year's Alumni Awards and Homecoming weekend, especially those celebrating milestone reunions.

I invite you to get involved in any way you can and reach out if you have any ideas or events you would like to see happen.

With gratitude,

The books Rajani read as a child helped shape who she is today. They inspired her to pursue medicine, made her yearn to live in different worlds, and helped her consider what it's like to walk in someone else's shoes. But Rajani never saw her own experience in a book until she was an adult—and when she did, it was life-changing. She believes that everyone deserves to see themselves in the page of a book; that writing and reading diversely promotes empathy; and that empathy makes the world better.

Rajani now lives in the Boston area. She's married to her college sweetheart, Lou LaRocca, and is the mother of two incredible young adults, Joe and Mira. You can learn more about her at www.RajaniLaRocca.com.

Stephanie Disney

Stephanie Disney is a true asset to the Collegiate family, having dedicated over twenty-five years to the school. Starting in April of 1995 as Stephanie Schroerlucke, she quickly became an integral part of Collegiate, making significant contributions as both a parent, volunteer, and employee. Stephanie's dedication often goes unnoticed due to her behind-the-scenes efforts, making her a humble force for positive change within the Collegiate community.

Stephanie's journey at Collegiate began as the first Communications Assistant while pursuing her degree in Communication from the University of Louisville in the evenings. Over the years, she held four different positions in the Advancement Office, showcasing her adaptability and commitment to professional growth. Through her hard work, she steadily climbed the ranks, learning different roles and earning leadership positions. As an involved parent and long-time employee, she helped eight different Heads of School get to know the school and understand the culture.

Her contributions to the school extend far beyond her responsibilities as an employee. In the fall of 2008, Stephanie's son Nathan began Kindergarten at Collegiate, with her daughter, Rachel, soon following in Junior Kindergarten. Stephanie quickly got involved as a member of the LCS parent community, helping with class parties, volunteering at sporting events, and supporting the fine arts program. She even recruited her husband, Jason, to be a consistent volunteer for the school whether he was helping with events like the Gala, running the clock for athletics, or coaching girls' basketball teams. As a parent, she provides a nurturing and supportive presence for her children, their friends, and the wider Collegiate family. Her love for Collegiate is palpable, radiating an infectious passion that inspires others to embrace the school's mission and values wholeheartedly.

Stephanie's outstanding dedication and unwavering commitment have earned her the respect of the entire Collegiate community. Known for her tireless work ethic, Stephanie is often the first person to arrive on campus and the last to leave. She approaches every task with enthusiasm, never considering any job too small or insignificant. From cleaning up after parent gatherings to working concession stands at sporting events and assembling senior gift baskets, Stephanie's positive attitude and willingness to contribute to all aspects of the school are truly remarkable.

Stephanie is an exceptional community builder, effortlessly forging connections and fostering a sense of belonging wherever she goes. Her warm and welcoming demeanor endears her to all who have the pleasure of crossing paths with her. With boundless enthusiasm and an unwavering positive outlook, Stephanie's presence uplifts those around her, infusing every interaction with joy and optimism. Stephanie Disney is undeniably deserving of recognition for her dedication and unwavering support, and she embodies the spirit of the Collegiate Service Award.

YOUNG ALUMNI ACHIEVEMENT AWARD

Stephanie Potter '03

As President of Collegiate's Recycling Club, Stephanie Potter knew she wanted to make a difference. Since then, she has dedicated her career (and much personal time) to addressing pressing issues such as climate change and plastic waste. With a focus on high-impact sectors like food and agriculture, Stephanie has successfully found ways to bridge the gap between industry goals and social and environmental impact.

Currently, Stephanie holds the position of Director of Environmental Policy at PepsiCo, where she plays a crucial role in advancing the company's environmental policy agenda in North America. Her responsibilities involve driving progress across priority areas such as packaging, water, regenerative agriculture, and climate policy to support PepsiCo's sustainability goals. Prior to joining PepsiCo, Stephanie worked at Nestlé USA, where she advocated for well-designed policies to improve production practices and optimize recycling infrastructure in addition to leading sustainability initiatives for select brands.

Stephanie's commitment to sustainability has been evident throughout her career. She served as the Executive Director for Sustainability and Circular Economy at the U.S. Chamber Foundation, overseeing collaborations focused on circular supply chains, recycling, and recovery. In this capacity, Stephanie played a key role in refining the U.S. Chamber's approach to environmental, social, and governance (ESG) issues and climate action. Stephanie's expertise in sustainable business strategies was honed during her time at Rabobank, where she created and implemented sustainable business strategies for North American corporate clients in the food and agriculture industry.

Recognized for her influential work and dedication to sustainability, Stephanie was elected Vice-Chair of The Recycling Partnership's Board of Directors in June 2022. Her contributions to the field have also earned her a place on Sustainability Magazine's "Top 100 Women in Sustainability" list in 2022, where she was acknowledged for harnessing the power of business to drive meaningful change.

In addition to her professional endeavors, Stephanie is an adjunct professor of sustainability at American University's Kogod School of Business, where she imparts her knowledge and passion for sustainable practices to future business leaders. She holds a BA in Political Science with Honors in Education and an MA in Educational Policy from Stanford University.

Outside of work, Stephanie can be found enjoying life in Washington, D.C., with her wife, Rachel Evans, and their dog, Toby, where she spends her time working at the front desk of her neighborhood yoga studio, learning how to garden, and co-hosting salon dinners at their home. Stephanie's passion for sustainability and sustainable business strategies have helped her become a trailblazer in her field and a driving force for positive change.

ATHLETIC HALL OF FAME AWARD

Liz Ratliff Evans '08

Liz Ratliff Evans is an exceptional individual who has made remarkable achievements both as an athlete and a coach at Collegiate. She has been deeply connected to Collegiate throughout her life. Graduating as a member of the class of 2008, she embraced the school's vibrant culture and participated in a wide range of activities and sports that shaped her journey. Her passion for sports and dedication to her teams have left a lasting impact on the Collegiate community and beyond.

Her athletic prowess became evident during her time at Collegiate, where she participated in eleven seasons as an athlete, competing in Field Hockey, Basketball, Lacrosse, and even Varsity Softball while in Middle School. As a three-sport captain in her senior year, Evans showcased her leadership skills both on and off the field. Field hockey held a special place in her heart, earning her the prestigious Amazon award, All-State tournament team honors, and serving as a starting defender on the varsity team during her junior and senior seasons. One of her notable accomplishments was helping the team secure a 2-0 victory over Assumption for the district championship.

Her skills and dedication also shone in lacrosse, where she transitioned from playing Varsity catcher in softball to lacrosse goalie, quickly earning the title of Most Improved Player her sophomore year. Evans' passion for lacrosse grew, and she became an MVP and All-State player in her senior season. She was recognized as the "Goalie of the Year" for the state of Kentucky in 2008 by the Kentucky Lacrosse Coaches Association.

Following her graduation from Collegiate, she attended Centre College, where she continued her field hockey journey. Unfortunately, her playing career was cut short due to injuries, but it sparked a new passion for coaching. She embarked on a coaching path, starting with soccer at Boyle County Middle School in 2010. Her dedication and skills soon led her to join their high school program, coaching a sport she initially knew little about.

Returning to her alma mater as a coach has been a dream come true. Over the last decade, she has made a significant impact coaching both field hockey and lacrosse. Throughout her coaching journey, she has served as both an assistant coach and head coach, leading her teams to regional championships and even a state championship appearance in lacrosse. However, her proudest moments come from the relationships she has built with the young women she has coached, witnessing their growth and success beyond the playing field.

She recently married her husband, Jonathan, and they have three cats - Lucy, Julep, and Ethan. When she's not coaching or working, Liz enjoys cooking, spending time with her husband and friends (many of whom attended Collegiate), and visiting her parents in Florida.

FACULTY & STAFF LEGACY AWARD

John Herzfeld

John Herzfeld didn't want to be a teacher.

A wise woman, who later became his wife, encouraged him to try teaching. He returned to his hometown of Louisville and began a long-term sub position at Collegiate in the spring of 1988. Immediately he knew this school was special. Students were bright, engaged, and loved to learn. That fall a permanent position opened in the Middle School, and he remained there for many years.

One of the novels he taught the seventh graders was a section of T.H. White's The Once and Future King, where the wise wizard Merlyn prepared the young Arthur for his role as ruler. "Education is experience," Merlyn says, "and the essence of experience is self-reliance." John adapted that as his teaching philosophy. Children learn through experience—doing stuff, not just being talked to.

So in his classroom, students did stuff. They pretended to be lawyers trying the rape case in To Kill a Mockingbird by using the actual Code of Alabama to look for legal definitions and loopholes. They interviewed survivors of the 1960s to write and publish an oral history of that turbulent decade. They analyzed historical documents to determine what parts of a historical novel were true and which parts were fiction. To comprehend Shakespeare, they learned the Stanislavski System of acting to interpret and enact scenes. And to better understand the insidious propaganda of Animal Farm, they analyzed the logical fallacies that appear in grocery store tabloids and political campaigns.

He used music to teach grammar. His students learned coordination and subordination by singing variations of Bob Marley's "I Shot the Sheriff." "Beat on the Brat" by the Ramones illustrated the imperative mood. And when Bob Dylan sings, "You ain't goin' nowhere," are you going somewhere or not? Discuss.

Students from across the decades don't hesitate to proclaim Mr. Herzfeld was their "BEST. TEACHER. EVER." and "a bright spot in the challenging days of Middle School." His colleagues are quick to point out how lucky they were to work with him and that "being on the 7th grade team with you was the brightest spot of my career!". Parents share how much their student loved his class and how he "taught my child to search for joy in the work they are doing."

Because a teacher's job is to fit the world into the classroom, John loves to travel internationally and bring what he learned to his students. He is proud that his son Dylan Holland is a member of the Collegiate family and that his son, Treavor Martin, is improving the world.

FACULTY & STAFF LEGACY AWARD

Janice Jones

Janice Jones embarked on her journey with Collegiate on December 27, 1982 and retired in 2022. During her 39 year tenure, Collegiate underwent several momentous transformations, including transitioning into a fully co-ed school.

Janice initially joined Collegiate as a member of the Business Office, where her dedication and expertise shone through various responsibilities, including student billing, accounts receivable, accounts payable, and investments. Janice managed the office's operations, relying on meticulous handwritten documentation, filing systems, and impeccable organizational skills. It was during this period that Janice's hidden talent for handwriting caught the discerning eye of the Advancement Office. She took charge of hand-addressing invitations and mailings, exemplifying her commitment to ensuring every detail was executed with a touch of personal elegance.

Subsequently, Janice transitioned to a role in Athletics, serving as a secretary for the department. She found joy in reliving her own experiences as a high school athlete. Janice often reflected on the profound satisfaction derived from fostering connections with students, illustrating her unwavering dedication to their growth and well-being.

Most recently, Janice worked in the front office, extending her warm greetings and invaluable assistance to students, faculty, alumni, parents, and prospective families alike. She effortlessly embodied the epitome of a welcoming presence, providing a familiar and friendly face that greeted visitors upon crossing Collegiate's threshold. Janice's remarkable ability to forge personal connections extended even beyond the confines of the school, as she took the time to know and remember the names of the mailman and delivery personnel, further testament to her genuine care for others.

With unparalleled grace and warmth, she has faithfully represented the institution, serving as the first point of contact for all who call or visit. Regardless of the nature of the call, she graciously tended to each inquiry with her trademark calmness and poise. With open arms and genuine warmth, she has embraced students, faculty, and families from all walks of life, creating an environment where everyone feels valued and included. Her innate ability to foster connections and make individuals feel seen and heard has truly made Collegiate a place where the bonds of community are strengthened.

Even though Janice is enjoying her retirement, she can still be found on campus visiting grandchildren Ana '31 and JJ '35, and her daughter LeAnna '11, who teaches first grade. We extend our heartfelt gratitude to Janice for dedicating an astounding 39 years of her life to Collegiate, for exceptional service, and for her unwavering commitment. Janice has had a profound impact on the institution and the lives of those she has touched throughout her career.

2023 Senior Legacy Recognition

One of Louisville Collegiate School's long-standing traditions is to honor legacies at graduation. Legacies are defined as current students whose parents, grandparents, and/or great-grandparents graduated from or attended Collegiate. Those seniors with other relatives who attended Collegiate are acknowledged separately as Collegiate Connections. We are proud to share the Legacy graduates of the Class of 2023, along with the names of their family members.

Alumni Reunion Weekend: September 29-30

If you graduated in a year that ended in a '3 or an '8, then it's your milestone reunion year! While all Alumni are welcome and encouraged to attend Reunion Weekend, we hope these milestone classes will join us to celebrate together!

Each year during Reunion Weekend, the Louisville Collegiate School Alumni Association presents awards to honor members of the Collegiate community for outstanding achievement at a dinner and ceremony right here on campus. It is a free event and open to the whole community.

There is no right way or wrong way to have a reunion. Just like each class had a unique experience at Collegiate, so go the reunions. The reunion planning begins with someone or a group from the class, or if no one started the process, you can volunteer yourself!

Here are some proven ideas:

- Get everyone together at the Alumni Association Awards Dinner the Friday night of Reunion Weekend!
- Start a class Instagram or Facebook group and let people know about the reunion.
- Plan a campus tour and a family-friendly picnic or lunch at school.
- Organize a casual gathering at a classmate's home, local bar, or restaurant.

Please contact the alumni office at 502.479.0345 or ceasley@louisvillecollegiate.org to help with your reunion planning. We are ready to facilitate with contact information, goodies, and resources!
